The Chairmen's RoundTable Mentors 200th Local Business

- CRT hits major milestone after serving the local business community for over a decade -

San Diego, CA – April 10, 2007 – The Chairmen's RoundTable (CRT), a San Diego-based, non-profit volunteer organization that provides gratis mentoring and business advice to CEOs and Presidents of local, private businesses, today announced that they have initiated the mentorship process of their 200th local business.

The CRT has served the San Diego business community for over a decade. "We are proud and honored to have worked with the many savvy local business leaders that have taken advantage of our mentorship program over the years," said Hus Tigli, Chairman of the CRT. "There is a great satisfaction that comes out of knowing how we have contributed to the success of a company – through our ideas, guidance and inspiration of the company's leaders. Mentorship is truly a rewarding experience for everyone involved."

Currently, the CRT has 31 active mentoring assignments. "This is a record for us," said Robert McRann, CRT Chair of Client Evaluation and Mentor Assignment. "We have been actively getting the word out about our mentorship program and have really accelerated the pace of mentoring assignments over the past couple of years. The CRT has over 40 experienced and highly-respected members who have volunteered their time to our mentorship program. We want to connect as many companies as possible to this incredible opportunity to work with them."

There are many success stories that the CRT can share after 200 mentorship assignments (see our case studies http://www.chairmensroundtable.com/case_studies.asp). One CRT client summed his experience like this: "Working with the CRT allowed us to clearly define and articulate our vision for the company in a living document that we can continue to use. I would recommend this process to any company that wants to challenge its direction and is looking for sound feedback from talented business people," said Allan Keck, President, RW Smith & Company.
