The Chairmen's RoundTable Announces New Sponsors and Partner

-Two sustaining sponsors and one new partner pledge support of CRT -

San Diego, CA – October 30, 2007 – The Chairmen's RoundTable (CRT), a San Diego-based, non profit volunteer organization that provides gratis mentoring and business advice to CEOs and Presidents of bcal, private businesses, today announced that Polito Eppich Associates LLP and Hutchinson and Bloodgood LLP have recently become CRT sustaining sponsors. In addition, the CRT has formed a strategic partnership with the Corporate Directors Forum.

"The CRT's sponsors and partners are an invaluable part of our organization's ecosystem," said Hus Tigli, Chairman of the CRT. "Our sponsors' financial support funds our operations, the community connections of our partners and sponsors help build awareness for the CRT, and these connections fill our pipeline of local companies to mentor. This is how we have successfully reached out to and mentored 200 local businesses over the last 10 years. We welcome these fine organizations who have pledged their support of our mission to strengthen San Diego one company at a time."

Mayor of San Diego, Jerry Sanders, recently shared these words of praise for the CRT, "The Chairmen's RoundTable has provided an invaluable service to the local business community for the past 10 years. The successful CEOs who are members of this unique organization have contributed their time and expertise to mentor the leaders of more than 200 of our local companies as a way of sharing their collective experiences and giving back to their community. The cumulative effect of mentoring one company at a time has had a positive impact on San Diego's regional economy. I applaud the Chairmen's RoundTable for its 10 years of valuable contributions to our local businesses and encourage its members to continue their efforts for many more years to come."
